

Download Framing The Net The Internet And Human Rights

The focus on 'internet freedoms' and 'internet rights' has risen considerably in recent years, and in July 2012 the first resolution on the promotion, protection and enjoyment of human rights on the internet was adopted by the U.N. Human Rights Council. The human rights implications of internet use have been subject to debate since the mid 1990s, yet recently the agenda has taken on a new momentum. On the one hand, policy makers practically compete to highlight the role of the internet as a tool for social change with policy implications in a number of spheres. The focus on 'internet freedoms' and 'internet rights' has risen considerably in recent years, and in July 2012 the first resolution on the promotion, protection and enjoyment of human rights on the internet was adopted by the U.N. Human Rights Council. Framing the net - The internet and human rights; Event Framing the net - The internet and human rights. 30 June, 2014 - 12:30 to 15:00. Venice School of Human Rights. Lecture by Rikke Frank Jørgensen at Venice School of Human Rights.